

JAMES COOK HOSPITAL IN MIDDLESBROUGH IS INVADED BY LOTS OF TEDDIES (AND A FEW FREEMASONS)

Following the decision of our Provincial Grand Charity to provide Teddies to Hospital A&E Units throughout our Province, the very first recipient was a young boy by the name of Connor Pearson.

The first consignment of Teddies was delivered by Richard Anderson the Provincial Grand Master, who was accompanied by Phil Stewart the Chairman of the Provincial Charity and John Hemy who is Charity Steward of one of the many Middlesbrough Lodges.

The A&E Unit will receive regular supplies of the Teddies and Sue Murphy, the Sister in the A&E Department said "the Teddies will be given by nurses to those children who arrive in a distressed state and where they feel it will help to calm them so that treatment can be carried out".

A Province-wide initiative to help those in our society who are vulnerable and in need of assistance. To read the full article and see the video click here
